Loved to Perfection

There is a lie a lot of us believe. We think, "If only I were perfect, people would like me." Well, I have some bad news – Jesus was perfect and a lot of people didn't like Him!

You don't have to be perfect to be loved, or even to love. Love chooses what gets attention. Parents can focus on an empty bottle, a full diaper, or their new child. Parents love even a messy child. Children love even imperfect parents.

God sees you – imperfections and all. And when we love others with their imperfections, people start to see His resemblance in us.

My dear friends, we must love each other. Love comes from God, and when we love each other, it shows that we have been given new life. We are now God's children, and we know him. (1 John 4:7 CEV)

Until next time ...

Pastor Scott
